Summary: Science fiction film set in contemporary New Mexico. Four hunters in the New Mexico wilderness begin to have hallucinations and exhibit primitive emotions as they become the subjects of psychological experiments conducted by an alien space creature which has taken up residence in an abandoned Indian pueblo. One recurring vision is the image of a recently dead friend of several of the hunters. The dead man (Armstrong) was a Vietnam vet who was the uncle of one hunter, and a friend of two others and his reappearance is often in military uniform. When the hunters realize they are being watched, they attempt to flee, but end up trapped in the pueblo with the results of other experiments by the alien creature. In a final confrontation, they use a barrage of their own memories of their dead friend to defeat the alien.
