Summary: Mystery/war film set in South Vietnam in 1968. Assigned to the U.S.
Army’s Criminal Investigations Detachment (CID), Saigon division, in 1968, McGriff (Dafoe) and Perkins (Hines) are plainclothes cops who have orders to keep the peace in a city slowly being strangled by the effects of war. Six prostitutes whose babies were fathered by American servicemen have been murdered. Grasping for clues, the investigators meet with sympathy from a Catholic nun, indifference from local bar-girls, and hostility from an angry Vietnamese mob. The evidence leads them from the bars of Saigon, to the battlefield at Khe Sanh, and finally to the tunnels of the Viet Cong.
