Summary:  Action/adventure film set in contemporary Mexico. Novelist Danny Pastor (Wasson) was living a comfortable life in Puerto Vallarta, but experiencing writer's block and a shortage of funds. Then he witnessed the shooting of an American naval officer in a cafe, and when the killer approached him and offered him $3000 for a ride to the border, Danny sensed a story that could restore his fortunes. The shooter, it turns out, is Clayton Price (Glenn), a man who honed his skills as a sniper in Vietnam, was captured and tortured by the Vietnamese, and who became an assassin largely out of loneliness. Danny and his girlfriend Luz (Zacarias) take Price into the desert, pursued by CIA agent Walter McGrane (Keitel) who is determined to recover his loose canon. As he gets to know Danny and Luz, Price begins to reconsider his initial intention of killing the only people who could identify him as the assassin.
