Summary: Melodrama set in Vietnam in the 1990s. Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon) is being changed by westernization and economic development, and many people are being left behind by the changes. The young woman Kien An is a living link to the old ways. Hired to pick white lotuses for a reclusive ex-poet, her singing reminds him of his youth and inspires him to write again. In the center of the city, Hai, a cyclo driver, enters a race with the hope of winning enough money to spend an evening with an ambitious prostitute he has fallen in love with. Meanwhile, a street urchin, Woody, who sells trinkets to tourists, meets James Hager (Keitel), an ex-G.I. searching for the daughter he left behind in the war.
