L1430 L.I.E. (USA, 2000)

(Other titles: LIE; Long Island Expressway)

Credits: director, Michael Cuesta; writers, Stephen M. Ryder, Michael Cuesta, Gerald Cuesta.

Cast: Brian Cox, Paul Franklin Dano, Billy Kay, Bruce Altman.

Summary: Melodrama set on contemporary Long Island, N.Y. Fifteen-year-old Howie (Dano) loses just about everything and everyone in the space of a single week, but ends up finding himself in the process. His mother has just died. His father (Altman), a corrupt building contractor, can barely keep tabs on his young girlfriend, let alone his own son. Thusly, the teen must navigate his adolescence virtually unsupervised. Floating towards an ill-behaved existence, Howie and his crowd begin robbing houses in the middle-class neighborhoods off the Long Island Expressway. Together, he and his best friend Gary (Ray) break into a place belonging to an old guy named Big John (Cox), a local man who is a respected pillar of the community, an ex-Marine and Vietnam veteran. When Big John fingers Gary for the crime, Howie learns that his pal has been leading the secret, dangerous life of a gay hustler. Subsequently, we also discover that Big John is a pedophile.

---

Arthur, Paul. “All in the family” Film comment 37/3 (May/Jun 2001), p. 70+ [3 p.]
Covert, Colin. “Destination unknown; A young boy finds refuge in a shadowy father figure whose motives are uncertain” Star tribune [Minneapolis, MN] (Sep 28, 2001), p. 34.

__________. “What L.I.E.s beneath ratings decision; Director says NC-17 will block target audience from seeing ambiguous film” Houston chronicle (Sep 23, 2001), Zest, p. 10.
Hart, Hugh. “Movies; Want creepy? Brian Cox is the go-to guy; After playing Hannibal Lecter and Goering, the role of a pedophile still proves daunting” Los Angeles times (Sep 30, 2001), Calendar, p. 19.
Lally, Kevin. “Dangerous highway” BPI Entertainment news wire (Sep 12, 2001)
Lim, Dennis. “L.I.E.” Village voice 46/13 (Apr 3, 2001), p. 120.
Olsen, Mark. “Sympathy for the devil” LA weekly (Sep 28, 2001), Film, p. 31.