Ethical Issues of Shopping at Wal-mart

Jaime Lynn Longo, Ph.D., Associate Director of Academic and Learning Support Services
Wednesday, January 27, 3:00 p.m.

Get Connected...

In some circles, it’s common wisdom that Wal-Mart is an unethical, union-busting business entity that exploits workers at home and abroad while driving local mom-and-pop stores into bankruptcy. For others, Wal-Mart’s low prices provide an increased, and necessary, chance to feed and clothe their families on a tight budget, and maybe even allow for an occasional (low-priced) splurge.

Join Jaime Lynn Longo and students from INST 100 for a discussion of how one company can have such different public images – and whether shopping at Wal-Mart fits each of our public images.

Explorer Cafés are open to all.

Healthy Lifestyle Resolutions

Healthy Habits

- Eat Breakfast. Breakfast eaters are champions of good health. Research shows people who have a morning meal tend to take in more vitamins and minerals, and less fat and cholesterol. The result is often a leaner body, lower cholesterol count, and less chance of overeating.

- Get Enough Sleep. Sleep is vital to good health and to mental and emotional wellbeing. The NSF (National Sleep Foundation) reports that people who don't get enough slumber are more likely than others to develop psychiatric problems and to use health care services. Plus, sleep deprivation can negatively affect memory, learning, and logical reasoning.

- Exercise. Though exercise has many long term benefits like weight control, maintaining healthy bones, joints, and muscles, reduction of heart disease, and psychological well being, it also has some short term benefits. The short-term results of exercise include helping people to think and move better.

- Drink Water. The body needs water to keep properly hydrated, and individuals vary widely in how much water they need. Joints need it to stay in motion; and vital organs such as the heart, brain, kidney, and liver need it to work properly.

- Make Social Connections. Volunteer. Go to church. Join a club. Whatever you do, do it with people. Communal activities are good for your physical and mental health.

Dear Lasallians:

I received this advice through the Higher Education Service-Learning Listserv that I belong to. I thought I would pass it along as we think about how to respond to the crisis in Haiti:

1) Don’t donate goods. Donating stuff instead of money is a serious problem in emergency relief. Only the people on the ground know what’s actually necessary; those of us in the rest of the world can only guess. Some things, like summer clothes and expired medicines are going to be worthless in Haiti. Other stuff, like warm clothes and bottled water may be helpful to some people in some specific ways. Separating the useful from the useless takes manpower that can be doing more important work. It’s far better to give money so that organizations can buy the things they know they need.

Some people like to donate goods instead of cash because they worry that cash won’t be used in a way that helps the needy. If that’s you, I have two points. Why are you donating to an organization you don’t trust? And what’s to stop them from selling your donated item and using the money for whatever they want?

After Hurricane Mitch in 1998, Honduras was flooded with shipments of donated goods. They clogged ports, overwhelmed military transport, and made it nearly impossible for relief agencies to ship in the things they really needed. Those donations did harm, not good. Expired drugs had to be carefully disposed of. Inappropriate donations had to be transported away and discarded. All of this wasted time and money.

2) Don’t go to Haiti. It’s close to the US, it’s a disaster area, and we all want to help. However, it’s dangerous right now and they don’t need “extra hands”. The people who are currently useful are people with training in medicine and emergency response. If all you can contribute is unskilled labor, stay home. There is no shortage of unskilled labor in Haiti, and Haitians will be a lot more committed than you are to the rebuilding process.

If you are a nurse or physician, especially with experience in trauma, and you want to volunteer, email Partners in Health – volunteer@pih.org<mailto:volunteer@pih.org> – and offer your services. Or submit your details to International Medical Corps.<https://www.cytiva.com/cejobs/cojobsIMC.asp#imcorp1003> They’ll take you if they can use you. Do not go to Haiti on your own, even if you are doctor. You’ll just add to the confusion, and you’ll be a burden to whoever ends up taking responsibility for your safety.

3) Don’t ignore rebuilding. The physical damage done to Port au Prince is going to take a long, long time to repair. The human consequences will have a similar slow recovery. Haiti will still need our help next year, and the years after that. It is going to take more than just a short-term infusion of relief money. Give your money to organizations that will be in Haiti for the long haul, and don’t forget about Haiti once the media attention moves on.— “No One Needs Your Old Shoes: How Not to Help in Haiti”

Sincerely,

Louise Giugliano,

I. Smoking Issues
   a. Many departments (i.e., Food Services, Security and Safety, Athletics) have created their own internal policies regarding where and when employees can smoke (see past HAC minutes).
   b. Community Development Advisory Board has been discussing smoking policy changes for the resident living areas. Resident Student Association is in support of restricting smoking to designated areas.
   c. School of Nursing Public Health Nurses will focus their seminar on addressing the public health issue of second hand smoke on La Salle’s campus.
   d. HAC members will come to next meeting with recommendations for designated smoking areas.
      i. Students on the committee will recommend outdoor locales that might work as designated smoking areas for the residence halls, apartments and town houses.
      ii. Mike Gilbert will use the scan map of the campus to recommend potential areas throughout the rest of the campus for designated smoking areas.
   e. An updated proposal that addresses the following issues will be completed by the end of January to be given to the Vice President of Student Affairs. Recommendations will address the following:
      i. Signage
         1. Wording for the signs
         2. Placement
         3. Demarcation of smoking areas
      ii. Enforcement Strategies
      iii. Identification of designated smoking areas
      iv. Recommendations as to how to communicate any impending changes in smoking policy

II. Health Fair – April 22, 2010
   a. Need to come up with a theme.
