Robert Vogel, Ed.D., Professor of Education, Director of La Salle’s “Writers Matter” Program

Wednesday, April 14, 3:00 P.M.
Holroyd Lobby (FREE FOOD)

At this Explorer Café, we'll discuss how programs such as La Salle's "Writers Matter" can, if at all, be used as a tool for youth empowerment and development.

You’ll have the chance to talk about these issues with some of the program's La Salle mentors and students from one of the 12 schools currently being served, The DePaul Catholic School. Hear their stories and share your own.

Can writing make a difference, lead to higher achievement and inspire students to realize their roles as vital members of their communities?

Explorer Cafés are open to all.

The Impact of Third-Hand Smoke

The American Cancer Society defines "third-hand smoke" as the post-smoking toxic residue that freely floats in the air and settles on the many surfaces in our environment. Research is now showing that the combination of the chemicals that are emitted from a cigarette and natural airborne compounds form a new potentially cancer causing agent.

So, you can now add third-hand smoke to your list of things to avoid. Third-hand smoke is what we all complain about—the smell on our clothes and hair after being around a smoker. The health risks of third-hand smoke are just now being researched and the verdict is . . . .

- Third-hand smoke contains the same toxic chemicals as second-hand smoke: lead & arsenic. You can be exposed to third-hand smoke if you are in a car, room, or any environment that people USUALLY practice their smoking habit. Even if they AREN'T smoking at that moment, YOU are exposed to third-hand smoke.

- Those at the GREATEST risk of third-hand smoke are innocent INFANTS and TODDLERS. This is because children put their hands on EVERYTHING, and put their hands in their mouth. Along with bacteria, there are the TOXIC CHEMICALS from a cigarette that reside on carpets, floors, toys, lamps, furniture, walls, curtains, car seats, clothing, skin, and hair.

- Research has shown that infants are exposed to third-hand smoke 20 times more than adults.

How to protect yourself from third hand smoke:

- QUIT SMOKING and stay away from those who smoke.

- Avoid the residence of a smoker because even if no one is actively smoking, the exposure is still present.

- Smoking outdoors cannot protect you or those around you from third-hand smoke because the toxic chemicals reside on your clothes and skin, so those that come in contact with you have now been exposed to third-hand smoke.

- For other valuable information concerning third-hand smoke and ways to decrease/prevent exposure please visit www.lung.ca
