La Salle University recently held its seventh annual Economic Outlook, co-sponsored by La Salle's School of Business and the Business Network of the Union League of Philadelphia. (From left) Paul R. Brazina, Dean of La Salle’s School of Business; La Salle alumnus Thomas J. Lynch, ‘62, Vice President, The Haverford Trust Company, and President of the Union League from 2000 to 2002; featured speaker Jane Bryant Quinn, bestselling author and columnist; and Brother Michael J. McGinniss, F.S.C., Ph.D., ’70, La Salle’s President.

Quinn’s presentation, “The Economy and Your Money,” provided advice on investment diversification in today’s economy. Past speakers in the jointly sponsored Economic Outlook series have included CNBC commentator Ron Insana and Forbes magazine Editor, President, and CEO Steve Forbes.

On March 20, 1863, less than three months after the Union League was officially organized, La Salle College, as it was called then, was founded in Center City Philadelphia. Like so many of the city’s successful historic institutions, La Salle and the Union League have grown and evolved to meet the needs of the times—including partnering for Philadelphia.
